Governor Daniels declares Technology Coordinators Day

Superintendent of Public Instruction Dr. Tony Bennett announced the gubernatorial declaration of Nov. 13, 2009, as Technology Coordinators Day. Dr. Bennett joins Gov. Daniels in his salute to technology leaders around the state and their influence on Hoosier students.

“It is clear that technology in schools is a valuable resource that allows students to grow and succeed academically,” Bennett said. “With technology-focused programs, such as the New Tech model, launching around the state, we look more and more to our technology coordinators for the leadership, knowledge and support necessary to make these initiatives successful.”

The proclamation from Governor Daniels’ office reads:

State of Indiana, Executive Department, Indianapolis

Executive Order Proclamation – To All Whom These Presents May Come, Greetings:

Whereas, Indiana’s students are one of our most precious resources; and
Whereas, Indiana’s schools are instrumental in student development of skills, growth of knowledge and expansion of clear thinking; and
Whereas, technology coordinators are key leaders in providing the technological tools and skills students need; and
Whereas, technology coordinators across the state play an integral part in leading schools to proper integration of technology with learning;

Now, therefore, I, Mitchell E. Daniels, Jr., Governor of the State of Indiana, do hereby proclaim November 13, 2009, as TECHNOLOGY COORDINATORS DAY in the State of Indiana and invite all citizens to duly note this occasion.
